The plan is that the company shall, to begin with, purchase the unused waterfalls in the river Lagan, and build seven power stations there. Smaller operation plan includes ten larger places to which electric power is to be transmitted. According to this smaller plan, which is to be carried out first, the transmissions, with branch lines, will be 186 miles long and capable of distributing 13,000 HP. When complete plans have been carried out the last-named figures will be doubled. For carrying out the small plan, the cost is calculated to be $2,760,400, but the larger system will cost about $1,072,000 more. The specifications for the sum first mentioned are as follows: For water-works buildings, $911,200; for machinery, $402,000; for transmission cables and wires, $482,400; and for regulating the access and supply of water, $238,000. It is intended to make the price of the electric power so low that the same can compete with the cheapest motive power obtained in any other manner, and as soon as certain contracts with the communities named have been signed the work can begin. It is considered that the negotiations and the work on the different power plants will take two years before any power can be distributed.

SIX MILLION DOLLARS

by not advertising contracts in ENGINEERING NEWS. In Major Gillette's report on the Philadelphia Filtration Plant, he says:

"There was no advertising for this large contract in any of the engineering journals, where contractors look for such notices."

Are you going to lose money by failing to secure adequate competition? ENGINEERING NEWS reaches more contractors than any other engineering weekly. The rate for proposal advertising is $2.40 per inch—nothing compared to the saving that may result.
